ABSTRACT

Bibliographic data, physical characteristics, contents, prices, and ordering instructions for Spanish and Portuguese instructional materials are provided for each entry. Subject categories include general works, social science, language arts, pure science, technology, the arts, literature, and history. Materials are classified according to the Dewey decimal system by subject matter, with related subject areas utilized. The annotation provides an objective description of materials and often includes suggestions concerning appropriate grade level and utilization of materials. The bibliographic materials are generally adapted for use by bilingual teachers. Many works included in the compilation have been translated from foreign languages into Spanish. (RL)

IMPORTANT EXCHANGE OF IDEAS BETWEEN SPANISH EDITORS AND U.S. BILINGUAL-BICULTURAL PROGRAM OFFICIALS

A unique meeting, which will undoubtedly be of benefit to both U.S. bilingual-bicultural programs and Spanish publishers of educational materials, occurred at the Materials Acquisition Project offices on Monday, June 19. A group of Spanish editors, headed by Joaquín Benítez Lumbreras of the Instituto Nacional del Libro Español, came to confer with a group of officials who represented Spanish-speaking populations and bilingual-bicultural programs throughout the U.S.

The subjects that were discussed included the following:

1. U.S. bilingual-bicultural education: history, administration, resources;
2. Book-purchasing procedures in different states and school districts;
3. Lack of educational materials for bilingual-bicultural programs;
4. Requirements that should be met by instructional materials that could be produced by Spanish publishers for bilingual-bicultural programs.

The U.S. participants -- Chicanos, Cubans, Puerto Ricans, and other Spanish-speakers -- indicated that, naturally, materials produced in Spain do not relate directly to the needs of the Spanish-speaking populations of the U.S., particularly when they refer to history, social and cultural matters, and also vocabularies. They emphasized that there exists a scarcity of books that describe the contributions Spanish-speakers have made to this country, to both its historical and its cultural development, and that give these contributions the significance they deserve. They mentioned, too, that it is necessary, up to a certain point, that educational materials be prepared in the Spanish dialects prevalent in the U.S. Beginning readers, books about customs, flora and fauna, and things and ideas related directly to the culture of the people, ought to use regional words, although it is desirable that more advanced texts and books on math, science, and technical subjects broaden the language base with synonyms and specialized terminology.

The Spanish editors stated that if no legal or economic impediment exists, they are interested

SIGNIFICATIVO INTERCAMBIO DE IDEAS ENTRE EDITORES ESPAÑOLES Y FUNCIONARIOS DE PROGRAMAS BILINGÜES Y BICULTURALES DE LOS ESTADOS UNIDOS

El lunes 19 de junio tuvo lugar en las oficinas del Proyecto de Adquisición de Materiales en San Diego, California, una singular conferencia que sin duda repercutirá en beneficios para los programas bilingües y biculturales de los Estados Unidos y para las editoriales españolas que se dedican a publicar materiales de enseñanza. Una misión española de editores, encabezada por Don Joaquín Benítez Lumbreras del Instituto Nacional del Libro Español, se reunió con un grupo de funcionarios que representaban las poblaciones hispanoparlantes y los programas bilingües y biculturales de varios estados de la unión norteamericana.

Entre los temas que fueron discutidos se incluyeron los siguientes:

1. La educación bilingüe y bicultural en los Estados Unidos: historia, administración, recursos;
2. Procedimientos de compra de libros en diferentes estados y distritos escolares;
3. Carencia de materiales de enseñanza en los programas bilingües y biculturales;
4. Características requeridas en los materiales de enseñanza que podrían ser creados por las editoriales españolas para los programas bilingües y biculturales.

Los participantes de Norteamérica que representaban a las poblaciones chicana, cubana, puertorriqueña y a otros latinos indicaron que, naturalmente, los materiales producidos en España no se relacionan directamente a las necesidades de las poblaciones hispanoparlantes de los Estados Unidos, sobre todo en lo que se refiere a historia, a cuestiones sociales y culturales, y también a vocabularios. Hicieron hincapié en la escasez que existe de libros que relaten las contribuciones que los hispanoparlantes han hecho en este país, tanto en su desarrollo histórico como cultural, y que den a dichas contribuciones la importancia que les es debida. Mencionaron también que es preciso que hasta cierto punto los libros estén escritos en los dialectos hispánicos de los Estados Unidos. Los libros en que se inician a la lectura los estudiantes, los que tratan de costumbres, de la flora, la fauna, de los objetos e ideas directamente relacionados a la cultura del pueblo, deben hacer uso de in creating instructional materials in accordance with the previously mentioned prerequisites and employing Chicano, Cuban, Puerto Rican, and other Spanish-speaking editors to accomplish this mission.

The U.S. participants commented that much of the content of the material from Spain is of considerable assistance in bilingual-bicultural instruction, as well as the content of the materials of other Spanish-speaking countries; that the Spanish that appears in the recent editions from Spain is more appropriate than the Spanish in past editions, inasmuch as it fits the levels of the students' abilities more aptly. Above all, they assured the Spanish editors that the Spanish in the books from Spain, like that in the books from Latin America, forms part of the unifying base of language common to all Spanish-speakers. It was noted that all the participants in the meeting understood each other easily, despite the fact that they represented distinct Spanish-speaking groups.

In fact, the educational reform that was started in Spain in 1971 has placed that country in a very favorable position. The format of the new texts reflects forward-looking educational theories and techniques. The libros de consulta and the fichas de trabajo, de recuperación y de autoevaluación are the product of a plan of programmed individualized learning. The vocabularies and activities that appear in the books demonstrate a clear perception of students' needs. In addition, the quality of the binding, paper, and illustrations is impressive.

Much of the same can be said also for many of the Latin American editions, including some from Argentina, Central America, Chile, Colombia, México, Perú, and Venezuela. Teachers who have visited M.A.P. to review the books in its resource collection and who are field-testing them have spoken enthusiastically of their content and of the success they have had with them, in spite of the modifications they have recommended.

Another group which attended the conference consisted of U.S. distributors of books written in Spanish-speaking countries. These gentlemen proposed some procedures that will facilitate swift acquisition and distribution of educational texts. One of these recommendations is that lists of books for which the demand is the biggest be provided so that they can stock them in the U.S.

In summary, it was established that the demand for educational materials for bilingual-bicultural programs is real and acute; that even when, in the future, books are published especially for U.S. Spanish-speakers, many of the books that are published in Spain for Spain will continue to be of value in bilingual-bicultural instruction, like many of the books that are published in Latin America for Latin America; and that the Spanish editors are prepared to do everything they can to create complete series of educational materials for U.S. Spanish-speakers in order to implement bilingual-bicultural curricula in their entirety.

The desire to supply what is required is sincere. The first steps have been taken. Hay que seguir adelante.

los vocablos regionales, aunque es deseable que en los libros más avanzados y en los libros de matemáticas, ciencias, y en los técnicos se vaya ampliando la base de lenguaje con sinónimos y términos especializados.

Por su parte los españoles declararon que, exceptuando que existan impedimentos legales o económicos, están totalmente dispuestos a crear materiales de enseñanza de acuerdo con los requisitos mencionados y hasta a emplear redactores chicanos, cubanos, puertorriqueños y demás latinos.

Los participantes de Norteamérica también observaron que mucho del contenido de los materiales de España ayuda considerablemente en la instrucción bilingue y bicultural, así como el contenido de los materiales de otros países de habla española; que la calidad del español que aparece en las ediciones recientes de España es más adecuado que en ediciones pasadas en tanto que se ajusta con mayor certeza a los niveles de capacidad estudiantiles. Sobre todo cercioraron que el español de los libros de España, así como el de los libros de los países latinoamericanos, forma parte de la base unificadora de lenguaje que es común a todos los hispanoparlantes. Se hizo notar que todos los concurrentes a la junta se entendían con facilidad a pesar de representar distintos grupos hispanoparlantes.

En realidad, la reforma educacional que se inició en España en 1971 ha puesto a ese país en una posición muy favorable por lo que se refiere al formato de sus libros de enseñanza que refleja una pedagogía avanzada. Los libros de consulta, las fichas de trabajo, de recuperación y autoevaluación son el producto de un plan de programación individualizada de los estudios. Los vocabularios y las actividades que aparecen en los libros muestran que se van percibiendo más claramente las necesidades de los estudiantes; y la calidad de la encuadernación, de las hojas y del arte gráfico son excelentes.

Mucho de lo anterior se puede decir también de algunas ediciones de latinoamérica, incluyendo algunas de Argentina, Chile, Centroamérica, Colombia, México, Perú y Venezuela. Los maestros que han llegado al Proyecto de Adquisición de Materiales para revisar los libros de la colección de ejemplares y que están haciendo pruebas con los libros en sus clases, hablan con entusiasmo del contenido de los libros y del éxito que han tenido con ellos, a pesar de que recomiendan modificaciones.

Otro grupo que asistió a la conferencia fué el de distribuidores norteamericanos de libros escritos en países de habla española. Estos señores propusieron algunos procedimientos que facilitarían la rápida adquisición y distribución de los libros de enseñanza. Una de estas recomendaciones es la de que se les proporcionen listas de los libros que tienen mayor demanda para que se puedan ir almacenando en los Estados Unidos.

En resumen, se estableció que la demanda de materiales de enseñanza para programas bilingues y biculturales es real y aguda; que aún cuando en el futuro existan libros creados especialmente

A NOTE ON OUR NEXT ISSUE...

Future issues of the M.A.P. publication will look very different from past ones. As we mentioned in the last issue, we intend to print articles instead of annotations, which will make the publication into more of a magazine than a bibliographic list. At first these articles will be especially for bilingual elementary teachers. They will emphasize not only the best materials in our collection in each subject area and on each level but also suggested methods for employing these materials in a classroom situation. For example, we expect to publish articles on first-grade language arts, reading, and social studies in the July issue. Accompanying the articles will be brief bibliographies of other appropriate materials on this level and in these subject areas. In addition, we hope to have a summary of some of our field-testing feedback. We believe that individuals involved in bilingual education will benefit from such an approach, and we are looking forward to meeting their needs more fully.

A WORD OR TWO ON PRICES...

The prices we list in our publication are the prices at which we purchased our materials. Since we receive significant discounts from a number of the foreign distributors and publishers with whom we deal, these prices are not necessarily the ones at which the materials are available through U.S. distributors. As a matter of fact, overhead and other factors may often change these prices considerably.

For this reason, we recommend that you contact a distributor in your geographical area for accurate information on prices as well as ordering procedures. To minimize confusion concerning this matter, we wish to re-emphasize that the prices in our publication are only estimates; we list them so that you can have an indication as to comparative costs.

ACERCA DE NUESTRA PROXIMA EDICION...

En el futuro cambiará bastante el aspecto de la publicación de M.A.P. Ya que, como indicamos en nuestro último número, presentaremos artículos en vez de anotationes, la publicación dejará de ser una compilación bibliográfica y se convertirá en un tipo de revista.

En un principio se publicarán artículos describiendo materiales de enseñanza preescolar y primaria, hasta el sexto grado. Se pondrá énfasis en proporcionar informes detallados de los materiales sobresalientes de nuestra colección en las distintas áreas de enseñanza en cada nivel y se recomendarán métodos para emplearlos en clase.

En la edición de julio esperamos publicar artículos sobre las áreas de lenguaje, lectura y estudios sociales en el primer grado. Estos artículos vendrán acompañados por breves listas bibliográficas de otros materiales de nuestra colección que sean apropiados para dicho nivel y dichas áreas de enseñanza. Además, tenemos pensado presentar un resumen de una parte de los resultados que hemos obtenido en nuestro programa de pruebas de los materiales en clases bilingües.

Creemos que nuestra nueva orientación resultará en beneficios adicionales para las personas que se dedican a la educación bilingüe y bicultural. Anticipamos que podremos suministrar efectivamente a sus necesidades.
